

Erin breaks ground on $114M wastewater treatment plant

EloraFergusToday Staff

Apr 29, 2022 8:00 AM

Town of Erin Council was recently joined by North American Construction and local MPP Ted Arnott for an official ground breaking ceremony at the site of the Town's new Water Resource Reclamation Facility. | Photo Supplied

Listen to this article

00:00:42

NEWS RELEASE

TOWN OF ERIN

Town of Erin Council was recently joined by North American Construction and local MPP Ted Arnott for an official ground breaking ceremony at the site of the Town's new Water Resource Reclamation Facility. The $114M project will take two-years to complete, with construction beginning in May.

"I am pleased to see this project get underway", said Mayor Allan Alls. "This project will allow us to address housing affordability in Erin by facilitating the construction of mixed-use housing – at no cost to taxpayers", he added.

This much-required infrastructure development signifies the Town's dedication to bring sustainable development to our community.

Add to the story

Have a story idea?

Letter to the editor

Report a mistake